GREETINGS TO
THE NATIONAL FRATERNITY OF KAPPA DELTA RHO, INC.

From the date of our founding, as a Colony, in April 1970, it has been the expressed desire of this Colony to become a Chapter in the National Fraternity of Kappa Delta Rho. For the past year the men of Dayton Colony have been devoting the majority of their efforts to becoming a Chapter. It is at this time that we feel that our efforts have progressed to the extent that we now put them into this petition. It is our hope that the following pages will reflect to some extent the tears and sweat that go into founding a fraternity. It is no ordinary task, and it cannot be undertaken by ordinary men. It is a task that each Chapter has undertaken, but most of all it is a task known best to the founding fathers.

It is our expressed desire that our men, rules, government and Colony as a whole meet with the approval of all brother KDR's. It is also our desire that the National Fraternity of Kappa Delta Rho and its individual Chapters will benefit by what we have to offer.

A LOOK AT THE UNIVERSITY OF DAYTON

The University of Dayton traces its history to the year 1850 when a modest primary school for boys, known as St. Mary's Institute, was opened in Dayton. Operating the little school was a group of Catholic missionaries who had left their native France just a year earlier to bring their educational work to America. These priests and brothers were members of the Society of Mary, a religious order founded in 1817 by Father William Joseph Chaminade.

These pioneer Marianists (as Society of Mary men were called) were fortunate, while conducting their ministry in Dayton, to become acquainted with a certain Mr. John Stuart, a son of the royal family of Scotland. Mr. Stuart sold the Marianists his one-hundred-and-twenty-acre "Dewberry Farm" just south of the city--an ideal, hilltop property for a school. The following summer, in 1850, fourteen pupils began classes in the homestead of Dewberry Farm.

From that humble beginning St. Mary's Institute grew. Some years later, it became St. Mary's College, and then in 1920, at age seventy, the school became the University of Dayton.

Its growth and progress continued. When the school adopted its present name, enrollment was one hundred and seventy-one. In 1937, two years after coeducation was introduced, it passed the thousand mark. Following World War II, enrollment at the University of Dayton--as at most other colleges and universities around the country--expanded rapidly. In 1946, almost three thousand students registered, and in 1967, a record total enrollment of more than ten thousand was attained.

A LOOK AT THE UNIVERSITY OF DAYTON2

The campus itself is located on a seventy-six acre hill-top at the southern edge of the city of Dayton. A west campus, just several minutes distant from the Main Campus, also comprises seventy-six acres; it is used primarily for housing of freshman men and special extra-curricular and academic programs. An East Campus, on the dividing line between Montgomery and Greene Counties, is the motherhouse for young Marianist Brothers who are doing college work at the Marianist College. The East Campus is also the site of Bergamo, a center for ecumenical study and Christian renewal. It's programs have included management training programs.

The University of Dayton, fully accredited and recognized, offers courses in forty departments of instruction to twenty-one degrees on the associate, baccalaureate, and graduate levels. The forty departments are comprised within the six major units of the University--the College of Arts & Sciences, the Schools of Business Administration, Education and Engineering, the Technical Institute, and the Office for Graduate Studies & Research.

Growth on a college campus is initially seen through its new buildings. The University of Dayton has constructed and planned its share of buildings for the past five years. This construction supplies more classrooms, laboratories, equipment and living and recreation areas, and not only strengthens the undergraduate programs but enhances the master's curriculum and sets the stage for doctoral programs.

Three structures are of prime importance. The ultra-modern 10-story women's residence hall houses 324 women students in 54 apartments. The project cost almost $3,000,000. The $7,000,000 six-floor engineering-research complex houses most of the School of Engineering and UD's Research Institute. Open for occupancy in the Winter of 1970, the building enables Engineering to strengthen its bachelor and master's programs and adds the doctoral dimension.

A $5,000,000 library of eight stories has enabled the University to quadruple its library holdings. It provides more research and study space to the student and is designed for computer capabilities. The Massive Structure has recently just opened in January.

The $4,000,000 sports arena, a project which enables the University to release the present fieldhouse exclusively for physical education and intramural sports, was christened in December 1970.

The recent growth of the University is reflected in its more than 10,000 full and part-time students, almost double the enrollment of 1960, and the fact that 52 percent of its 17,000 alumni have graduated since 1962.

On January 9, 1969, twelve dissatisfied male students formed the nucleus of Theta Beta Kappa, the University's youngest social fraternity. Since their recognition by the Inter-fraternity Council the brothers of OBK strove to uphold the ideals of their fraternal allegiance, "Trust, Brotherhood, and Knowledge". In their first year of existence, the young local fraternity doubled its membership, and played an increasingly active role in the University's social affairs.

By January 1970, however, the group was faced with a serious dilemma- the student body's apathetic outlook toward the Greek system. This reactionary movement was a catalyst in the frat's enrollment of only four pledges (Winter 1970). Also, being faced with the upkeep of an expensive physical plant, coupled with additional financial burdens, the organization's current future outlook appeared dismal.

Examining various methods of renovation, the local fraternity investigated potential national affiliation. Following several letters of correspondence and personal contacts, the brotherhood narrowed their field of national possibilities. After lengthy discussions, Theta Beta Kappa, by unanimous consensus, attempted to become a link in the Kappa Delta Rho chain. Following the university's disavowal of its ordinance which permitted no national fraternities on campus, OBK turned to Kappa Delta Rho officials for realization of colony status.

Following colonization in April 1970, the rejuvenated colony tripled its original membership, stabilized its financial status, and (it) had become an increasingly popular element, not only in the Greek system, but, also, in the student community. This can be exemplified in the colony's first place victory for on-campus homecoming decorations; its sponsorship of a jujitsu (self-defense) clinic under the fraternity name; its widely-dispersed participation in inter-mural sports; its organization of numerous social and service activities such as T.G.I.F.'s, inter-Greek parties, car-washes, blood donations, participation in the annual Heart Fund drive, instructing mentally retarded children, plus the fraternity's own private functions.

Organizational pride must be built on achievement. Realizing this, the U. of D. colony is planning and embarking upon an ambitious program of cultural, social, and service activities which will add depth to our endeavors. Such policies and projects requires the coalition of individual entities, under the theme of fraternal brotherhood, all working under the proud name of Kappa Delta Rho.

ASSISTANT DEAN OF STUDENTS

Kappa Delta Rho Fraternity

Dear Brothers of Kappa Delta Rho:

It is with great confidence and pleasure that I write to you at this time to recommend for installation as a chapter the colony which you established at the University of Dayton in April 1970.

I have had the privilege of working with this group of young men since the Fall term of the 1968-69 academic year, when they organized a local fraternity Theta Beta Kappa. Their fraternal commitment to themselves and to their ideal has never ostentatiously faltered. Striving to maintain these ideals while attempting to involve others in their commitment, Theta Beta Kappa grew to a promising position on our campus. They are indeed respected by their fellow campus fraternity men.

Since the Spring of 1970, this colony of Kappa Delta Rho has made a sincere effort to strengthen their organization in light of their national fraternity commitment. They have attained full membership in the Interfraternity Council, and have increased their membership significantly.

It is without reservation that I commend to you the colony at the University of Dayton, and I am convinced that they will strive to "neither falter nor fail; . . . they shall add new lustre to [thy] name."

Sincerely yours,
