Outstanding Seniors of 1978-79

ALPHA—Middlebury

As this year's outstanding senior, Alpha Chapter has selected Howard "Skip" Reith III. Among many KDR activities, Skip has been in charge of showing movies to the public to raise money for such charities as The United Way, The Addison County Relief Program, and the Addison County Big Brother/Big Sister Program.

Skip has been a major contributor on the KDR intramural football, basketball, and hockey teams, all which had successful seasons. In addition to his all around ability, Skip has been elected House fire warden, and has successfully worked in our kitchen as steward and potboy.

A physics major, Skip is finishing his senior thesis on cavitation and pressure differentials, after doing exceedingly well on his comprehensive physics exams. At present, Skip leads the physics department student advisory committee. Skip has helped fellow students as a tutor in math, physics, and computer programming. He is president of the Middlebury Chess Club. A member of the Middlebury Student Forum, and head of the finance committee which distributes money to student sponsored activities.

GAMMA ALPHA—Bradley

The most outstanding senior in Gamma-Alpha Chapter is Ed Gerrard Urban III. Ed pledged his freshman year. Immediately after his activation, he assumed the office of Quaestor. He has held virtually every office in Gamma-Alpha leading to his three semesters as consul his junior and senior years.

What makes Ed an outstanding senior is his drive and determination for a successful chapter at Bradley. Last semester there were three actives and no pledges at Gamma-Alpha. Now, this semester we are 15 members strong, filled with enthusiasm and motivation thanks to Ed.

We, the newly initiated actives, would like to formally take this opportunity to extend our gratitude to Ed for bringing us the greatest experience in our lives — Kappa Delta Rho.

Note: Ed is also a member of Sigma Delta Chi, Professional Journalism Society. He will be attending De Paul Law School in the fall of 1979.

THETA—Purdue

James D. Kahlenbeck this spring was elected the most valuable senior award at Theta Chapter.

After joining the house in January of 1976, he was elected member-at-large to the executive board. The following semester he became house manager. Jim held that office for three semesters. His third office was that of senior tribune for most of his junior year at Purdue. In the spring of 1978 he was elected consul for a one-year term.

During his years in the house he was very active in intermurals and other extracurricular activities.

NU—Indiana

William Brent Pope is in the School of Business, majoring in finance.

He has not only lived in the Nu Chapter house for seven semesters, but has served on executive council for five of those as quaestor. Brent has been extremely active in intramurals, participating in flag football, basketball, softball, soccer, and volleyball. In his sophomore year, Brent managed to find time along with his other house responsibilities to ride on a qualifying Little 500 team. Practice for this race demands an extreme amount of time and dedication which Brent fulfilled to the utmost.

Most importantly, Brent's attitude toward his brothers, always helpful and concerned, is what makes him outstanding, and an example for other KDRs.

Plan for the Diamond Jubilee

THE 1978-79 SCHOOL YEAR is now history and we are looking forward to, and planning for, 1979-80, which will be our Diamond Jubilee year.

It was on May 17, 1905 that our 10 founders met in room 14 of Old Painters Hall and became the chartering members of Kappa Delta Rho.

Although Kappa Delta Rho has not grown in size as some other fraternities, it does have a substantial chapter roll and many quality alumni of which we can be justly proud. May the next 75 years be equally as prosperous.

What can we as alumni do to make our 75th year a successful one as well as those which will follow? Get involved! There is something for every alumnus to do if he wishes to. All chapters, whether it be your own chapter, or one nearby your home, would welcome your advice and counsel. Attend their meetings, offer suggestions as to how they could improve their chapter and their image on campus. Encourage and help the chapter to get involved in campus and community activities. Provide names of prospective rushees and help them rush the prospect. If you know of a young man of outstanding qualities who plans to enter a college or university where we have a chapter, send his name, address and as much information as you know about his scholastic and athletic accomplishments in high school, to the national office and we will forward the name to the proper person in the chapter.

Rush rules vary from campus to campus. Some chapters rushed and pledged high school seniors this spring and will continue to rush during the summer so the pledge may move into the house this fall and enjoy four full years in his fraternity. Other chapters cannot rush until the first week on campus, and still other chapters have rush deferred to the middle of the first semester or the beginning of the second semester. Regardless as to the rush rules, the chapter needs to have names well in advance so they can get acquainted with the prospect and prepare a list prior to their rush period. A sizable list of good prospects with plenty of time for advanced planning is essential to a successful rush. Don't delay. If you know of a good prospect who plans to attend one of the schools where we have a chapter, please complete the form on the inside back cover and send it in today.

Alumni can also lend their continued support to the 1979-80 Annual Alumni Fund. Our alumni have been very generous and loyal over the years supporting the fund drive, but hopefully next year will be the most outstanding. With inflation and constantly increasing prices, this income is becoming more vital each year. To those of you who have faithfully supported the Annual Alumni Fund, please continue your generous support. To those who have never contributed or have only contributed occasionally, we hope you will make this 75th year your year to assist K.D.R.

Each chapter should also strive to make 1979-80 their best year ever by putting extra effort into all activities during the year. Pledge more good men and, after a comprehensive pledge education program, initiate the largest class in your history. If all chapters would do this, it would be an outstanding contribution to the National.

TAMI

Sweetheart of KDR

For the first time in the past nine years there have been insufficient votes submitted in time to qualify the national sweetheart as campus-selected.

No candidate received more than five votes from the total of six chapters who participated. As a result, there was a four-way tie for sweetheart between Purdue, Lock Haven, Penn State and Lycoming.

Final selection was made by using an impartial three-man committee versed in art direction. The winner: Tami Anderson of Lock Haven, and runner-up, Lorraine Royach of Lycoming. (Late voting confirmed our choice.)

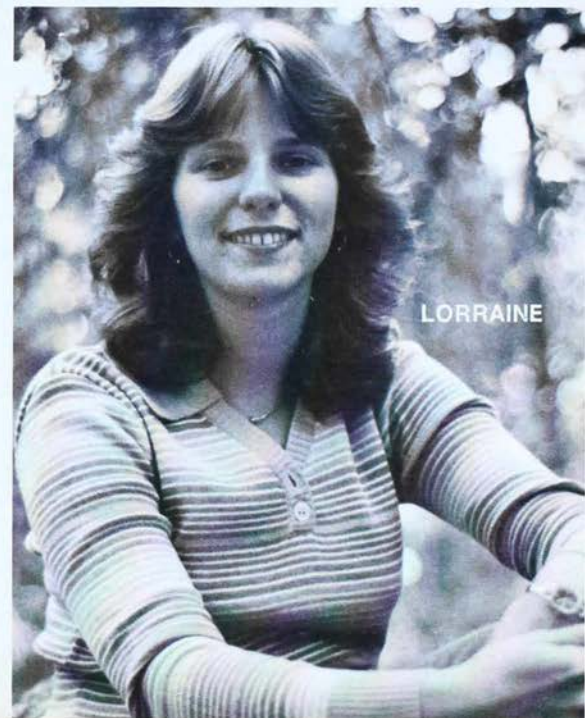

As mentioned in our last issue, this contest is a borderline situation. Support is lagging, and even voting is dropping back badly. If it were not for our anniversary in the coming year, we would be tempted to eliminate the contest entirely.

Instead, let's take advantage of the several suggestions by interested chapters, and add a few of our own:

- Open the contest in '79-'80 to selections from fall through January. You can submit your sweetheart at any time from September until the first of the year.
- Candidates will receive more than simply name and chapter identification to assist in voting.

Reminders will appear in the November issue to urge participation.

We would like to see every chapter send in a sweetheart and vote. ☐

Each chapter should plan in advance just what it hopes to accomplish in intramural sports, campus activities, scholarship, social and public relations. Put a strong member in charge of these activities and see to it the year's activities are well planned. If each chapter would pledge and initiate the largest and strongest pledge class in its history, this would be a banner year for our fraternity.

This Diamond Anniversary year can be our most outstanding if everyone, active and alumni, put forth a little extra effort. Can we count on you? ☐

IRAN — A Brief Overview of Our Experiences

June 1976-December 1978

by W. R. Gale, Nu '42
B.S. 1948, MBA 1956, Indiana Univ.

Since I committed in early January to provide a brief article on our experiences in Iran, all of you have been inundated with T.V., radio and press coverage on Iran, and it still is on the "first page" at least weekly. Consequently, I won't try to rehash the oil and political problems, or provide any panacea for their solution, but review our experiences and impressions on Iran and its people from our own family view point.

My company assigned me to Iran in early 1976, as director of market development, to review and establish the market potential for our materials in Iran. I arrived in early June 1976, and was joined by my wife and family in August, after I had located housing.

Looking for housing was interesting; I must have looked at one hundred places at least, trying to find something my family would enjoy. Costs were very high. I ended up taking an apartment for $2,200 a month, which I wouldn't have traded for my U.S. home which I leased for $500.

Brother Gale is in international sales for Owens-Corning Fiberglass and is presently assigned to the Mexico and South American markets.

Teheran is a city of many contrasts. It is modern in many ways and literally has hundreds of thousands of automobiles on the streets. It is a mixture of the old and the new with many small stores and shops. Supermarkets and department stores are new in Teheran, and virtually unknown outside the larger cities. The traffic is horrendous. While we were still living in the hotel, my 20-year-old son tried to cross a main street; he returned saying that the traffic was so bad that he ended up walking across the street with three nuns; he figured no one would run over a nun. He didn't know, but there are no nuns in Teheran; these were Iranian ladies wearing the traditional chador.

We found the Iranian people hospitable and friendly at all levels. Obviously, we had some problems with the language for in-depth communication, but we found most people willing to try to communicate with their few words of English and with our few words of Farsi. Most people, through T.V., newspapers, etc., were familiar with the U.S. Many wanted to send their children to school there, and were exceptionally friendly to Americans.

In September 1977, we went for a long weekend to a small village outside of Hamadan, which is a large city in the northwest of Iran. Although the village was only some 10 KM from the center of town, it took us about one hour in a 4-wheel drive vehicle to get there. The village has approximately 1,000 people, with no electricity, water, sewer, or any other utilities to which we are all accustomed. It was served by bus once a day during the summer and during the winter once per week when and if the roads were passable. Again, we found the people extremely interested in us because we were Americans. My wife used a bandaid from our first aid kit to help a scratch on a lady's hand. This gesture must have been appreciated because later on another lady came holding her head. Aspirin seemed to solve this problem. The next day someone came holding her stomach. By this time we had to use an interpreter to explain that we were not doctors and could not solve all of their ills. Anyway, our efforts were appreciated, and we were invited into homes and were presented with fruits, melons, etc., and thoroughly enjoyed our 3 days, living 100 years in the past when compared with our modern culture.

Business is quite different in Iran. It is done on a personal basis much more than here, and not nearly as much delegation of authority and responsibility as in the U.S. or Europe. Once you understand this and think about it, you will see that you shouldn't be surprised Iran is not more than a generation away from a trading/barter economy, even in the largest and most modern business enterprises.

It took us as a family about 6 months to get really settled in and used to the cultural and physical differences of life in Iran. After that, we lived a normal, active family social life with many friends, both Iranians and expatriates.

As to the political situation, unrest began to be reported outside Teheran by the local newspapers in February and March of 1978. This eventually spread to Teheran with demonstrations by students. Martial law was declared in late summer. In October and November violent demonstrations deteriorated into riots and the burning of many offices, stores, travel agencies, movie theaters, and restaurants and stores selling alcoholic beverages. A military government was proclaimed in early November with 8:00 p.m. curfew, and with the strike in government and private businesses, we began to notice shortages in food, gasoline, heating oil, with daily interruption in electrical service. Even in this situation, with military and police on most corners, there were concerned efforts on both sides to make sure no expatriates or Americans were hurt in any of the demonstrations or riots. This situation held through our departure in late December, even though we received the standard hate propaganda letters warning us to leave the country.

In summary, the Shah to me was not the cruel dictator often pictured, but had definitely lost contact with most segments of his people. His proposed reforms, free press and elections obviously did not come fast enough to satisfy some of the religious elements of the population. In my opinion, religious elements, and the socialist and communist groups will have many problems reorganizing the country.

No matter what form of government is eventually decided, I don't believe Iran will ever develop like a Western world country, and we shouldn't expect this or be surprised if Iranian cultural, social and other values are different than ours.

By the same token, I feel we in the U.S. should not allow demonstrations here by Iranians, like the ones in Los Angeles against the Shah, and should take strong steps to protect the rights of U.S. citizens and companies in Iran or any other country. □

Alumni Directory

May 17, 1980 will be the 75th anniversary of the founding of Kappa Delta Rho. The directors, in commemoration of this event and in response to numerous inquiries, have authorized the preparation of a directory of all those who have been initiated into the fraternity.

The Bernard C. Harris Publishing Company, Inc., of White Plains, NY, has been selected as the official publisher after a thorough review of this firm's extensive experience and success. Recognized as the oldest and largest exclusive publisher of alumni directories in the world, they have completed, over the past 15 years, more than 200 alumni directories for colleges, universities, secondary schools, and fraternal organizations.

This extensive project will be undertaken at no cost to the fraternity. The Harris Company has contracted to compile, publish, and market the directory, financing the operation solely through the sale of individual directory copies and, in cases where it seems appropriate, through space reservations to alumni only.

Kappa Delta Rho will not benefit financially from the directory sales (purchases should not be considered as a contribution), but will derive substantial benefit from the completely updated records and other valuable information obtained.

The main body of the directory will consist of an alphabetical listing of all alumni, with each entry to include name, class, chapter, home address and telephone, and business or professional information, including title, firm name and address, and telephone. Two complete indexes of all alumni, one arranged geographically by towns within states, and the other by chapter will follow the main listings, providing ready references.

This updated material will be derived from brief questionnaires mailed to all alumni with known addresses and followed up by telephone for verification of the information to be printed in the directory. At that time, and at that time only, alumni will be invited to purchase a copy of the directory or reserve space. Only enough directories to fill these pre-publication orders will be printed, and circulation will be restricted to alumni. Release of the directory is tentatively scheduled for June 1980. ☐

On Campus

BUCKNELL:

The school year of 1978-79 was a good one for Iota, which was very active in campus activities.

In intramural sports, after a strong but disappointing 3rd place finish last year, Iota hopes to improve considerably. Leading the effort were undefeated soccer and basketball teams.

In intercollegiate competition the chapter has placed athletes on varsity soccer, track, baseball and lacrosse teams.

Social activities were highlighted by sorority mixers, campus-wide band and cocktail parties, Christmas and spring formals, our traditional Playboy party, and finally all is capped off by a "tiny, little" party called Houseparty.

The chapter has been involved in local community and national charity affairs. Our "Suitcase Party" raffled off a weekend to the Bahamas, with proceeds going to the Lewisburg Library. Our "dream date" competition gives anyone the opportunity to buy a chance for a free dinner with a pledge. Proceeds from this project went to the American Cancer Society.

Rush this fall added 22 pledges, making our total membership 74!

In scholarship, Iota was 2nd among fraternities.

BRADLEY:

The Gamma Alpha (Bradley) chapter of KDR has returned! Not that we ever really left, but . . . after a traumatic series of setbacks — the biggest of which was the loss of our house at 1508 Barker — Gamma Alpha is on the move forward.

At the beginning of the '78-'79 school year, we had only three actives: Consul Ed Urban, Sr. Tribune Chuck Green, and Jr. Tribune Scott Gray. Last November 3, these actives held a rush meeting which gained ten pledges. At the outset of the second semester, six of these pledges moved into the apartments which were Gamma Alpha's headquarters. On March 3, eight of the ten pledges were activated.

On April 9, Gamma Alpha held elections for new officers.

The first big step this group of officers will take was decided at our April Alumni Association meeting. It was decided at that time that the proposal of Bradley's housing department would be accepted. This offer calls for the moving of a Bradley-owned house onto a vacant lot at 1521 W. Fredonia, Bradley's "Fraternity Row." Negotiations for a government loan are underway and promissory notes are being sold to finance this venture. For more detailed information on these notes, contact: Michael L. Games, Consul, 1206 W. College Ave., Peoria, IL 61606.

Gamma Alpha has always been active in community service, and this year has been no exception. In February, we participated in the Heart Fund's Walk for Life, netting over $700 for that charity. In March, we participated in Bradley's Campus Carnival at a local mall. For the third year in a row, we won "best single Greek" booth, and placed fifth in overall fund-raising, netting over $400, outdistancing fraternities like LCA and DU in getting funds for local charities.

Brother Bruce Larson was a member of Bradley's tennis team, which produced a 19-8 record, its finest ever.

Brother Chuck Green toured the western U.S. in April as a member of Bradley's Jazz Band and Symphonic Winds. Brother Green is an accomplished flautist.

All of us at Gamma Alpha are ready and eager to make KDR a force to be reckoned with at Bradley once more. We must do this without the services of Brothers Chuck Green and Ed Urban, who graduate May 20. Brother Urban will be attending DePaul law school, while Brother Green will be pursuing international business studies at Monterrey Institute in California. We wish these brothers the best of luck in the future and give our sincerest thanks for all they have done for their fraternity. Without these fine men, KDR-Gamma Alpha would have folded long ago.

Next year looms important for the future of this Chapter. We will have a house to rush people in, we have new members with new ideas, we have momentum. We hope to increase our numbers to at least 20 in fall rush. If we achieve our goals — and there is no foreseeable reason why we won't — Gamma Alpha chapter will take a back-seat to no one on this campus. And that's a sure bet.

INDIANA:

This has been a rebuilding year for Nu and we hope to enjoy a large pledge class this fall due to hard work and cooperation from each brother. With continual work of this quality, Nu should be living under the comforts of capacity next spring semester.

Homecoming was most successful this year, with a large response and a good time for all. The alums received a special treat during the homecoming football game because several brothers started, (Doug Peacock, Jeff Phipps, and Steve Weisert) and played very well. Steve Weisert will be returning with a starting position of offensive guard.

Several other brothers represented the chapter in varsity sports. In gymnastics, John Underwood, Paul Fisher and Bob Hill represent Indiana's finest, and John Gustafson runs for the cross country and track teams.

Intramural's went well this year in football, basketball and volleyball, with a second place title for the latter. Nu failed to qualify in this year's Little 500. However, Brian Graban, Jeff Moeller, Chuck Neidigh, and Brent Goble trained very hard.

As mentioned above, this has been a rebuilding year for Nu, with eight fall pledges which were initiated in January, and four spring semester pledges which will be initiated in September.

CALIFORNIA:

1978-79 has proven to be a banner year for Lambda chapter. Rush was successful, with 12 outstanding pledges.

Fall brought on gin-fizz alumni and family pre-football game parties and the annual 450 mile Winnebago party to USC.

Winter and spring featured numerous exchanges and parties, a trip to the Giants home opener and our up-coming ski dance.

Intramurals saw KDR placing 2nd and 3rd in respective IFC basketball and football competitions.

KDR had contributing members on Cal's nationally ranked swimming, tennis and baseball teams.

Kevin Sweeney '80, was instrumental in re-establishing "The Pelican," Cal's humor magazine. He is now editor-in-chief.

The most significant event, however, was the burning of our mortgage (reported elsewhere in this issue). Just as this event culminated over 50 years of dedicated alumni support, it also reflected KDR's firm establishment on the Berkeley campus.

Bob Behle, Bill Zorc and Randy Paniello, all of the class of '80, helped raise $20 by pushing Thor Von Damian, chapter mascot, for one mile.

ILLINOIS:

Eta chapter and the Disabled Student Organization sponsored a wheelathon on the quad April 22nd. The project helped raise almost $5,000 for the National Spinal Cord Injury Foundation. A 26 mile course was set up. Ron Malik, a non-KDR paraplegic was the only person to make all 26 miles. Brother Kenny List '80 completed 20 miles.

The chapter had a fantastic spring rush with 14 pledges assured for next fall. The house should be filled to capacity with some brothers forced to live on campus.

FRANKLIN:

Franklin College students participated in a 24-hour dance marathon to raise money for the Franklin Senior Center. The project was sponsored by Kappa Delta Rho, and the colony raised $900 to donate to the center for purchase of air-conditioning for the recreation and dining room, and for the purchase of benches. The benches will give senior citizens a place to wait for mini-buses at nearby shopping centers.

LOCK HAVEN:

This past year was very productive for Alpha Alpha chapter. In the fall we won a fourth place trophy and \$25 for our homecoming float; were awarded the academic trophy for the highest cum among fraternities and higher than the all campus cum, and had some great social functions. Also we won the intramural football championship, being scored on only one time in six games, that coming on a 2 pt. safety. This spring our main accomplishment was getting off probation. A few other items worth mentioning are that we won the intramural track meet, indoor soccer and took a second in softball. We may have won the I.M. crown, we are still awaiting the final results. KDR won the annual All-Greek beer drinking contest. Our eight man team polished off a $\frac{1}{4}$ keg in nineteen minutes, a new record. Our Greek Olympics team was practically unbeatable, completely dominating everyone and winning the Olympics by sweeping 7 of 10 events. Our alumni weekend was a big success, getting a large turnout to come back to the Haven. We've pledged 7 men in the last two semesters, but fall semester promises to yield a large pledge class. A few brothers who deserve mention are Gregg Koontz, two year captain of the wrestling team and Mid-Season All American last season; Bob Narducci, All Conference defensive lineman and defensive MVP for the team; Mike Mittrione, captain of the school's frisbee team; Gary Rosato, founder and president of the school's boxing club; Jerry Peterman, recipient of the Golden Whistle award for graduating in the top four in the Phys. Ed. department; and Paul Rohler for serving as IFC president.

A few of our other accomplishments this past year were raising money for the new wrestling room at the college, helping political candidates in their campaigns, raising money for the Heart Fund, shoveling snow for the elderly, and moving people during the flood scare this past spring.

OREGON:

Scholastic improvement and intramural championships highlighted the 1978-79 academic year for Sigma Chapter.

Grades have been a problem area for us in the recent past. We hit rock bottom in winter of '78 with a 29th place finish in the all house average category. But we've shown marked improvement, placing 13th this winter. The members compiled a 2.9 mark, good for 6th.

Our intramural competition is formidable, since we're in a league with some houses twice our size. But we scrambled to a league title in football last fall, and rolled to a bowling title this spring.

Nine young men pledged the house in September, and to date five have been initiated. So far eight individuals have signed with us to reside at the house for rush week next fall. If we achieve our goal of twenty, we should be near capacity.

During winter term we were forced to install a $6500 fire sprinkler system in the basement. Combined with our smoke alarm system, there should be no more hassles with the fire marshall.

The most involved brother in campus affairs was senior Dwayne Douglas. In addition to acting as treasurer for Blue Key, he served as the senior class vice-president.

PENN STATE:

Zeta had one of its best rush years ever, with 8 fall and 9 spring acceptances. It is easier to recruit with brothers in key leadership slots such as IFC Vice President, Overall Homecoming Chairman, etc. and many varsity team members.

Intramurally Zeta won the soccer championship and made it to playoffs in other sports, finishing in the top 5 of 50 fraternities.

Zeta missed Homecoming Award by 7/10 of a point. In the Dance Marathon $12,500 was collected for leukemia, but the chapter fell short by $500 of winning for the 6th straight time, finishing second.

The physical appearance of the house has been enhanced by new plush wall-to-wall carpeting.

It was a good year, but next looks even better! □

Mortgage Burning of Lamda Chapter House

by Monroe C. McBride, Lambda, '76

Nearly 100 brothers, the largest turnout for a fraternity reunion in a number of years, celebrated the final payment on Lambda's building note at a mortgage-burning party held February 17 at Leona Lodge in the Oakland hills.

The ceremony itself took place at the end of the evening's program.

The main event was so planned as to allow all who had made ownership of the chapter house possible, to participate. Matches had been circulated earlier. A three-legged black kettle was presented. Each brother came forward and dropped his unlit match into the pot.

Norb Babin '23, the oldest alumnus present, and Mike Enger '82, president of the recently-initiated pledge class, then simultaneously lit the mortgage. It flared up, casting a glow about the front of the darkened hall, while the gathering sang "The Likes", "Cal Drinking Song", "Lady in Red", "The Ode" and other old favorites.

Speakers from different generations of the chapter's history shared with those present their own memories from the buildings Kappa Delta Rho has called home in Berkeley.

Bill Shipley '26 recalled some of the pranks and incidents that were so much a part of fraternity life. While still in the Warring Way house (the chapter's first) one member was known as a particularly sound sleeper. As evidence, Shipley noted that the man's bed was once carried downstairs and left on the front lawn — while the brother was still in it! The slumberer awoke late in the morning to be greeted by students passing by.

Merle Garing '37, key in keeping Kappa Delta Rho active during the Second World War, was consequently and appropriately selected to speak for the thirties and early forties. Since he could not be present, Monroe McBride '76 read a letter from him addressed to the brothers.

Garing remembered the "Fireside Dances for the big sum of 25 cents per member," getting all of the dates there with just four or five cars and the time "we all chipped in two dollars to buy a pool table." He and his classmates look back at those as the best years of their lives, he concluded.

Ted Tronoff '49 described a house filled with men returned from the war. This had quite an effect, he observed: a K.D.R. was more mature then than before or since.

The pre-war chapter house had been converted into a woman's dormitory when the fraternity relinquished occupancy. The new place, leased from the university, was located across the street from the football stadium, this in the years of Pappy Walford's legendary Rose Bowl teams. The site was ideal needless to say.

In the late fifties the chapter transferred to the north side of campus to a large house at LeConte and Le Roy. Speaking for an ever-increasing representation of brothers from those years was Dave DeCarion '66.

He explained that K.D.R. had always admired Channing Circle (a park-like island at the intersection of Piedmont and Channing, the center of present day Greek activity and the site of the current chapter house). One morning found the intersection in front of the house painted with a large circle and "planted" with potted trees and shrubs from campus buildings.

Unfortunately, tell-tale drips of paint — which coincidentally matched the color of the house — led the local constabulary to K.D.R. rather quickly. After a day, a lot of scrubbing and elbow grease, "Le Conte Circle" was only a memory.

Don Bartels '69 recalled years which were not so happy for fraternities but no less full of good times. These latter included the frankfurters from Top Dog which one night would have had all of the diners paying homage to the porcelain god had they been able to get that far from their beds.

Under Bartels's consulate, the decision was made to move to the south side and the present location. In that place the fraternity has prospered until Kappa Delta Rho now ranks among the most prominent Greek-letter societies on campus.

This last was the theme of Consul Brad McBride's report on the state of the chapter.

Speaking from the audience, Dan Kennedy '76 declared that the speakers from the nineteen-sixties had ignored the student protest movements of which Berkeley was the hub. Indeed, the speakers had an obligation to share this experience as well as the stories of drinking and practical jokes.

Bartels, then at the microphone, responded to Kennedy. Every K.D.R. who was a student in those days, he said, cannot forget the tear gas, the marches and sit-ins, cancelled classes and the National Guard. He emphasized, however, that the speakers were not expected to furnish a comprehensive history but had been only asked to recount some special memories.

Introductions commenced the evening. Gordon Johnson '26, a San Francisco attorney, raised a stir when his turn came. "We ought to be ashamed," he started. "We've come here tonight to celebrate quite an achievement. But what have we really done?"

He looked around. "We signed pledges for one hundred dollars. One hundred dollars! That's nothing to give for what we have received!"

He called for a pen and wrote out a check for an additional one hundred dollars while the brothers looked on, some slack-jawed, others applauding and cheering. Several grabbed their own check-books and drafted similar checks. By evening's end, $725 had been received of which $690 was earmarked for replenishing a depleted building fund.

Following the speakers, John Fernbacher '79 presented a slide show which included pictures of the former chapter houses as they appear today. The last northside place is now a Jesuit residence but signs of its former inhabitants remain, Fernbacher informed the group; "KDR" is still inscribed in cement on the front porch. Another former chapter house has been replaced with a Y.W.C.A. and two others by university halls. The original Warring Way place stands with few changes since 1921. It's a boarding house.

When the festivities concluded, the crowd dispersed, many heading for the Berkeley chapter house which is now wholly the fraternity's without lien or encumbrance.

Don Bartels and Dan Gray '77 jointly chaired the celebrations planning committee. Scott Johnson '74, John Fernbacher '79, Brad McBride '79, Curtis Leviant '79 and Monroe McBride '76 rounded out the group.

This is the first time in the chapter's existence that it has owned its chapter house. Until 1969, when it purchased the Channing Way place, Kappa Delta Rho had moved from one rented quarters to another, about seven in all.

The decision to purchase came at a crucial moment in the chapter's history. Kappa Delta Rho was one of only four or five that remained on the northside, the other fraternities having succumbed to small rushes or themselves moved. Too, there were no sororities on northside. Actives numbered only seven. The prospect for the chapter's future was grim.

The alumni corporation seriously weighed the idea of relocation and the purchase of a house. Nearly 50 years had been required to bring the building fund to its current level. The wisdom of purchasing a residence for a fraternity which could have failed at any time — making mortgage payments difficult at best and possibly force resale or unfavorable terms — was not clear.

It was largely the mission of Executive Secretary E. Mayer Maloney that persuaded the alumni that to withhold the money would be to assure Lambda Chapter's demise.

The empty Alpha Sigma Phi house was acquired shortly afterward. It had stood empty for nearly a year during which time transients occupied it.

The balance of the note had been paid February first. About six thousand dollars remained in the building fund to provide continued maintenance, remodeling when necessary, and eventually, to replace the house. □

He formerly lived in Williamstown and had lived in Ventnor for the last two years. He had been employed as a stockbroker for Bache, Halsey and Stewart of Atlantic City and was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Williamstown.

What sort of person was Darwin Popow?

According to one man who knew him well, Williamstown High School Principal Roger Cassi was a teacher and Athletic Director at Williamstown when Popow was a student. He knew Popow as a student in his health and physical education classes, and he knew Popow as an outstanding athlete.

Cassi, interviewed by telephone on Tuesday, Aug. 30, noted that Popow was an excellent athlete and an excellent student.

Popow was district wrestling champion for two years and regional wrestling champion for one year. In the same year that he was regional champion, he also finished third in statewide wrestling competition. In his senior year, Popow also played on the school's baseball team which came in second in South Jersey Group II playoffs.

When he last saw Popow, a little over a year ago, said Cassi, he was "just amazed at his knowledge of his field of securities and investments."

"No matter what field Darwin had gone into," said Cassi, "he would have been a success."

In the top 10 percent of his class at WHS, Popow was selected as Outstanding Senior Athlete at graduation. He went on to earn a degree from Lycoming College.

In summarizing his admiration for Darwin Popow, Cassi said, "Anyone who didn't have a chance to be associated with this young man has missed out on something."

What's Pitch?

BY KRIS MIX

The third annual KDR Pitch Tournament at Middleburg came to an exciting climax Friday night as players, spectators and others in general readied themselves for the final round of action at the fraternity.

Dave LaPann and Tom LeBlanc, better known as the French connection, were meeting Donny Roach and Mike Sousa, also known as the GT connection, to decide who would take the title.

Pitch, a card game similar to hearts, bridge, pinochle and go fish, has been popular among KDR brothers for several years. LaPann started the tournament as a sophomore after having unusual beginners' luck at the game. Since that year it has been a KDR tradition.

Before the competition started I was given a little background on the players and the game. LaPann, the noted founder of the tournament and most intense player present, is respected as The Grand Poobah of Pitch. This being Dave's senior year, he retired from that position and named Mike Sousa as his successor. When asked how seriously he takes the game, LaPann replied, "Very seriously. A case of beer (goes) to the winners and two six packs to the losers. That's all the seriousness I need."

His partner, soft-spoken Tom LeBlanc, is well-known for his poker face and tendency to clam up during play. The "other half" of the French Connection, LeBlanc seemed confident of his ability to play without uttering a single word throughout the course of the tournament. He was the epitome of calm composure.

On the other hand, Donny Roach appeared rather nervous. "I spent four sleepless nights," he commented. Despite his difficulty speaking (as a result of his nervousness and lack of sleep) Donny managed to explain that "the GT connection" is actually a shortened version of "the Golden Tornado connection." That all has something to do with the fact that both he and Sousa are from Malden, Massachusetts, where the high school teams go by the name of (you guessed it) the Golden Tornadoes.

Sousa filled me in on the standings in the tournament so far, after assuring me that he was "not even nervous." He and Roach were representing the winner's bracket, having won all five of their previous matches. LaPann and LeBlanc had lost one match and won six on their way to the finals.

The tournament began with a clear victory for the French connection as they swept the first hand 4 to 0. (I have absolutely no idea how Pitch is scored, and I'm not even going to try to find out.) The Malden Maulers came back briefly in the second, bringing the score to a close 4 to 3, but from that point on it was smooth sailing for LaPann and LeBlanc. They swept the first game 21 to 3.

But the tournament was not over. Two out of three games are required to win, so the action began again. Roach was undaunted, overcoming his case of the nerves to proclaim, "We mean business." Sousa added, "If you're not going to play to win you might as well not play at all." The GT connection was clearly out for blood (beer?) in the second round.

They were simply outpitched. The French connection took the first hand 3 to 0 and ran away with the match from there. Sousa and Roach got only as close as 9 to 6 before the connection, with the help of some good French luck, really began to clean up. The final score of the game was 21 to 6 in favor of LaPann and LeBlanc. They were immediately declared the third annual Pitch Tournament champions.

The winners presented the grand prize case of beer to themselves and someone opened a bottle of champagne. (Someone nearly choked drinking it too.) Amid the fanfare of celebration LaPann named Sousa as his successor to the Poobahship. Dana Zecher, half of the only female team to compete in the tournament, suggested that a Grand Poobess be named also to keep things fair. Her suggestion was tabled after brief discussion. □

ZETA—Penn State

Richard Sabatine, outstanding senior of Zeta, has exemplified what a Penn State KDR really is. He has held numerous offices including Jr. Tribune, Athletic Chairman, Rush Council, Tribunal Chairman and Consul. As an athlete he helped KDR in practically all I.M. sports. Rich is an engineer who mixes his academics with house activities better than probably anyone at State. He will move from Zeta to a lucrative position with Mobay Chemical Co. He will always be known as a brother that could do it all — leader, athlete, student, comedian and close friend of actives and alumni.

ALPHA ALPHA— Lock Haven

The chapter selected Dan Way this year on the basis of his hard work in the fraternity, on campus and in the community. Dan has served Alpha Alpha as 2-term treasurer, 2-term IFC representative, song leader, pledge master and president, as well as being active on many intramural teams. Dan has written for the school newspaper, acted in several plays and was a member of the wrestling team. He has also worked with public relations programs between college and community, and between Greeks and the community.

BETA—Cornell

Jeffrey Holcomb, a Civil Engineering major from Smethport, PA is this year's selection from Beta chapter. Jeff served as Rush Chairman in his junior year, bringing 18 pledges into the chapter. This past year he was Senior Tribune. He has been active in all chapter activities and participated in I.M. softball, football, bowling and track. He has been a member of the Sage Chapel Choir and the University Glee Club, the student chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers and Tau Beta Pi. Following graduation he will enter the training program of Chicago Bridge & Iron Co.

SIGMA—Oregon

Sigma chapter's outstanding senior is Joel Ehrlich, who is graduating with a B.S. in Pharmacy. Joel pledged the house at the beginning of his junior year, and within a year had risen to the post of senior tribune. In what little spare time he had, Joel singlehandedly constructed a light show for our party room and a kegometer for the bar. Upon graduation he will start his internship in Hawaii.
